THE PROSPECTS OF RAILWAYS IN CHINA.

The speculations concerning railroad enterprise in the Central Kingdom have not vet to be known, and it is equally probable that nothing definite has been decided. We of this report, and all statements of the intentions of the Chinese Government on this subject must be received with reserve. Even the Shen-pao, the best informed of Chinese papers, has no reliable information of its own, and we find it quoting an announcement from a Japanese journal in reference to $580 per picul, alloe, of the matter, a sure sign of its own lack of [1] catties. intelligence. According to this authority four lines of railway have been decided on by the Chinese Government. These lines are as follows: -One from Tientsin to Peking; the second from Tientsin to Chinking and thence to Nanking; the third from Nauking to Shanghai and Hangchow; and the fourth through Fukien and Kwangtung to some point on the West River. The three first named are all ortremely likely to be amongst the first routes the iron way will take in China, but the latter is, to say the least, a little vague. Doubtless at some period Canton and Hankow or Kiukiang will be united by rail, and such a line ought to have precedence over any project to open Fukieu which is a mountainous province, presenting serious engineering difficulties. But at present there seems no immediate prospect of the railway being taken up with much energy by the Peking Authorities. The Viceroy of Chibli is a warm advocate of this innovation, and Prince CHUN is most favourably inclined towards it, but we have not yet heard that the opposition of the Board of Revenue has been overcome, while the presence in China of so many foreign syndicates eager to make contracts is cortainly calculated to embarrass the Chinese Government and delay the introduction of the railway. A Tientsin correspondent of the Shanghai Courier, writing under date China Traders' Insurance Company's Shares- of the 12th inst., probably hits the nail very closely in the following remarks on the subject :- "It is not that the Chinese do not like railways, nor is it that they cannot get the necessary funds, the jealous syndicates being only too On Tai Insurance Company, Limited-Tis. 148 leager to invest their capital. The reason seems to be that China has fixed it as her capital with Customs revenue as security, because she fears the pecuniary obligation to, and subsequent complications with, the China Fire Insurance Company's Shares-$88 Western nations. China will wait till native her market where she likes and build her gineers. It may be objected that foreign ospital is invested in different minor undertakings, but the enormous loans offered to China to make a complete railway system means quite another thing, and the rivalry of the different foreign nations as to who is of grave diplomatic importance." Accord-American, German, and French syndicates China Sugar Refining Company, Limited-$102 will all be declined: China will not listen to the voice of the charmer. No one doubts the ultimate adoption of the railway, but the Chinese Government evidently intend to take their own time to do it. Progress is slow in the Central Kingdom, and it is idle to pretend that it is not so. Were it not to centralise all power in their own hands, side attacks difficult and improbable, it is most likely the advent of the iron horse into the empire would be deferred indefinitely. The railway will find favour in the eyes of that there was no consideration. He would hard labour, and three hours, public exposure in Perak Sugar Cultivation Company—Tls. 18 per | the Imperial Government, not because of the greater facilities it will give to trade, not beprovinces might in future be prevented, but because it, will facilitate the transport of troops and munitions of war, and bring under the more immediate control of Peking Chinese Imperial Loan of 1884 B-5 per cent, the great provincal satraps who have so often shown a disposition to rule for their aggrandisement rather than the good of the country and the replenishment of the Impenal Exchequer. The advancement of art and science, the promotion of knowledge, or the improvement of the condition of the people are not at present cries to conjure with in the Chinese metropolis, and patrictism is a plant of feeble growth in the Flowery Land.

OPIUM IN BURMAH AND CHINA.

The annexation of Upper Burmah has furnished the Anti-Opium Society with a pretext for a fresh representation to the British Government. On the 4th ult. a deputation from the Society waited upon Lord KIMBER-LEY, Secretary of State for India, to whom they presented an address praying that from the beginning of British possession of Upper Burmah the Government would absolutely prohibit the importation of opium or the growth of the poppy. No opium is or has been, we believe, grown in Lower Burmah, and Lord KIMBERLEY was able to announce that the measures taken by the Government had not been ineffectual in checking the consumption of the drug. The Burmese are, like the Chiness, addicted to the use of opium, and it is probably almost impossible to suppress it altogether. We are at one with the Society, however, in hoping. that the Government will do everything in their power to discourage the practices of onium smoking and opium eating among the Burmess. That race are not such inveterate smokers as the Chinese, and the vice is, according to the latest statistics, decreasing among them. Whether or not prohibition of the importation of cpium into Burmah would be erpedient or justifiable is, however, a question that admits of some argument. The drug is undoubtedly a luxury, and it seems to us that the British Government have no more right to prohibit opium in Burmah than they have alcohol in England. At the same time, ancein every possible way. Lord KIMBERLEY promised the Society he would bring their views before the Viceroy, and "he felt quite certain that there would be a most careful examination of the state of affairs in Upper Burmah and a reconsideration probably of the subject. The annexation of Upper to Lower Burmah in itself made a considerable change in the whole situation, and it might be possible that that might bring about some change in the arrangements of the Government." 'It is to be hoped, however, that no policy of prohibition will be rashly or hastily adopted, for it probably would have the effect of creating an extensive contraband trade in the drug over the border from Yunnan, where it is so largely produced. As was to be expected, the Anti-Opinon Society could not refrain from reiterating their usual and oft-repeated charge of England having forced opium on to China. This knowing that its effects are generally speaking prejudicial, especially when enten, they antiquated and erroneous statement appears to have somewhat irritated Lord KIMBERLEY, who called their attention to the fact that probably two-thirds of the province of Yunnan was devoted to the cultivation of opium, and denied the correctness of the charge that the drug was forced upon China. With the following paragraphs of the Society's address, however, we are bound to express a general concurrence :---

Your Lardship will forgive us for pointing out the anaphri and, as we occupate, untenship position in with China by the land route at present. in the Russian trade regulations. Nor is it desirable that opium should be exported to Thibet. The people of that country have no taste for the drug at present, and it is not desirable that the British Indian Government should create a market for it there. Where the demand exists by all means le India supply it, if she can, though it will be advisable for the Indian Government to prepare for the time, gradually approaching, when the Chinese market will be almost entirely supplied by the home grown product. But we have no desire to see the habit of opium-smoking spread to other countries even in order to maintain the Indian revenue-though we do not consider it so pernicious as dram drinking-and therefore agree with the Anti-Opium Society that opium should not be included in the tariff between India and Thibet.

During his short tenure of office, Mr. Kopsch 3,200.00 did a great deal for Ningpo which no other Commissioner would ever have attempted to do. Shortly after taking over charge from Mr. Grimani, he commenced to work indefatigably in support of the Bund scheme and if this has hung fire for some time, the fault is certainly not his, but it is owing to its having been pigeon-holed in the Office of H.B.M.'s Legation at Peking. I have much pleasure to inform you, however, that it is now progressing favourably. Mr. Kopsch took a lively interest in everything connected with the welfare of the community and he was also the prime mover in all the entertainments during the past winter, to the success of which he greatly contributed by his excellent violencello playing.
